

Around The Czech Republic

Day Trips

Venture out of fair Prague for a day or two and see what the rest of the country is up to. You won't be disappointed – an impressive network of castles, natural wonders, and quaint villages awaits you. Explore these tourist favorites or hop off the train as the spirit moves you. Most of the spots listed below make for good day trips, but that doesn't mean you won't want to stay the night!

For Castle Lovers

Karlštejn

Karlštejn Castle is incredibly close to Prague, a great place for beginning day trippers. Guided tours of the main castle can be paid for on the spot; tickets to the Chapel of the Holy Cross, however, must be purchased (well) in advance. Due to strict control over the regulation of air, only 12 visitors are allowed inside at a time. The area surrounding the castle is beautiful in the summer, with a number of refreshments stands and restaurants at the ready for weary visitors.

Directions: Train from Smíchovské nádraží or Hlavní nádraží to Karlštejn; 40 minutes.

Distance: 35 km west of Prague

More info: www.hradkarlstajn.cz

Konopiště

Konopiště Chateau is a chateau in the midst of charming gardens and a scenic landscape. The interior of the castle, which was refurbished for Franz Ferdinand d'Este before his assassination, features a large collection of hunting trophies. One of the country's finest golf courses is in Konopiště. A splendid day trip.

Directions: Train from Hlavní nádraží to Benešov u Prahy or bus from Roztyly to Benešov u Prahy; 50 minutes.

Distance: 40 km south east of Prague.

More Info: www.zamek-konopiste.cz

Křivoklát

Křivoklát Castle once belonged to major kings and was used as a hunting lodge, but its importance sank as it was ravaged by fires twice over the years. It was also briefly used as a prison. Today it features numerous cultural exhibits around its grand interior, but one of the best things about a trip to Křivoklát is the surrounding countryside, with numerous trails perfect for hiking, biking, and leisurely strolls.

Directions: Train from Smíchovské nádraží to Křivoklát; one hour, 15 minutes.

Distance: 40 km west of Prague

More info: www.krivoklat.cz

Nelahozeves Castle

One of Bohemia's finest Renaissance castles, located in a small village of the same name, approximately 15 miles north of Prague on the Vltava (Moldau) river. Also known for being the birthplace of the great Czech composer, Antonín Dvořák.

Permanent exhibition „Private Spaces: A Noble Family at Home“ – evocative series of twelve period rooms illustrating in wonderful detail how an ancient and influential noble family lived day-to-day in one of its principal castles in the countryside. Paintings (Rubens, Pieter Brueghel the Younger, Jan Brueghel the Elder, Veronese, Sassoferrato), furniture, decorative arts and family memorabilia.

Open all year round from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (except Mondays).

Directions: Train from Masaryk Train Station (Prague City center) line O91 to “Nelahozeves zámek.” 40 minutes

Distance: 30 km north of Prague

Must-See Spots

Kutná Hora:

A number of gothic churches are to be found in Kutná Hora, one of the most popular being the Cemetery Chapel with Ossuary, which is almost entirely decorated with human bones. The Cathedral of St. Barbara is itself a magnificent structure which deserves a look around inside, too. The town is famous for its ancient silver mines, where tiny passages make for some exciting – if claustrophobic – tours. A UNESCO World Heritage site.

Directions: Bus from Florenc to Kutná Hora; one hour, 15 minutes.

Distance: 80 km west of Prague

More info: www.kutnahora.cz

Karlovy Vary

One of the Czech Republic's most famous spa towns is noteworthy for a number of things: spring water, spa wafers, Becherovka, the Moser glass factory, and more. Home to one of Europe's largest film festivals, Karlovy Vary has even caught Hollywood's eye. A day trip is possible but it's very likely you'll want to stay longer.

Directions: Train from Hlavní nádraží to Karlovy Vary; bus from Florenc to Karlovy Vary. The bus is more direct and should take two hours, 20 minutes.

Distance: 130 km west of Prague

More info: www.karlovyvary.cz

Terezín

Many will not view Terezín – a prison camp where over 150,000 Jews were held during the Nazi occupation before being sent to concentration camps – as an ideal day trip. But the experience can be educational, if not utterly humbling. The town of Litoměřice, just a few kilometers from Terezín, is also well worth visiting. Known for its wine, it is one of the oldest Czech towns located on the River Labe.

Directions: Bus 17 from Florenc to Terezín, 45 minutes.

Distance: 60 km north of Prague

Nature Calling

Český Ráj National Preserve

Climbers and hikers clamber to Český Ráj (Bohemian Paradise) to amble up the Prachovské skály and drink in the stunning view or walk the fine network of trails interwoven throughout the park's 588 acres. The ruins of the 14th-century rock castle Pařez and the rock pond Pelíšek are among the park's many marvels, as is the rock town Hrubá Skála that surrounds a hilltop castle where hikers enjoy the best view of the sandstone rock. Further north are the remains of Valdštejn Castle.

Directions: Bus from Florenc to Jičín; one hour 30 minutes. Jičín to Český Ráj; 15 minutes.

Distance: 88 km east of Prague

More info: www.ceskyraj.cz

Špindlerův Mlýn

Špindlerův Mlýn is the most popular winter destination in the Czech Republic, with a wealth of mountains and slopes for skiing, snowboarding, and a variety of other winter sports. The area is quite a tourist destination, and will be extremely crowded during the peak season – expect some long lines at the ski lift in February. There are a plenty of shops, restaurants, and other sights to see if skiing isn't your game.

Directions: Bus from Černý Most to Špindlerův Mlýn; train from Hlavní nádraží to Vrchlabí, 3 hours.

Distance: 110 km north of Prague

More info: www.spindleruv-mlyn.cz

Family Fun

Kladno Aquapark

Kladno may not be the most popular tourist destination, but the Aquapark is a popular one-day trip for families with kids, and it's open year-round. The Aquapark offers great swimming conditions for professionals or for those who just want to relax in the many different whirlpools and Jacuzzis. Kids will enjoy toboggans, slides, an underwater cave, and the 'wild river'. For those craving an adrenalin rush, try the 'Spacebowl' attraction. Open daily until 22:00. Entry fees: free entry for children under 3; 3-15 yrs 50 CZK/hr; adults 90 CZK/hr.

Directions: Bus from Dejvická or Hradčanská to Kladno; 20 minutes

Distance: 25 km north west of Prague

More info: www.aquapark-kladno.cz

Liberec

Liberec is home to an excellent zoo crowded with tigers, monkeys, lions, giraffes, penguins, and seals. And don't forget the impressive tropical house crawling with lizards and snakes with exotic plants and noisy birds flying overhead. Babylon, the largest covered entertainment center is another kid-pleaser. The relatively new complex boasts an aqua park, amusement park, interactive science exhibits, shops, restaurants, a four-star hotel, and more. Parents will want to check out the famed bus stop designed by David Černý, the enfant terrible of the Czech art world. Titled 'Stop', the bus shelter takes the form of a huge table holding a couple of pints of beer, a cactus, and a plate on which lies a bespectacled head severed at the neck with a knife and fork sticking out of it. Parents and children alike will appreciate the distinctive Ještěd Tower which affords lovely views of the city.

Directions: Bus from Černý Most (Metro Line B), one hour

Distance: 101 km north of Prague

More info: www.liberec.cz

AquaPalace

This new indoor water park opened in Čestlice (10 minutes from Prague-Opavot by public transport) in early 2008. Touted as 'the largest water park in central Europe', the facility features saunas, a spa complex, and a fitness center, along with a variety of pools and nine water slides. It's an attractive destination for families looking for some summer fun.

Directions: Bus from Prague-Opavot to Čestlice; 10 minutes

Distance: 8 km south of Prague

More info: www.aquapalace.cz

We're Here for the Beer (and Wine)

České Budějovice

Beer, motorcycles, and the country's largest square, dominated by brightly hued Renaissance and Baroque buildings, are just a few reasons to visit České Budějovice. Tour the Budvar Brewery, the inspiration for North American Budweiser, and sample the rich and malty local Budvar; check out the more than 100 motorcycles on display at the Museum of Motorcycles.

Directions: Bus from Florenc; two hours, 30 minutes. Train from Hlavní nádraží; can take up to three hours, 30 minutes.

Distance: 160 km south of Prague

More info: www.c-budejovice.cz

Mělník

According to legend, St. Wenceslas, the patron saint of Bohemian wine-makers was initiated in Mělník's vineyards. The wine tradition carries on today. Tour the Renaissance castle, sample homemade wines, and have lunch in the old school house overlooking the vineyards of Rip Valley.

Directions: Bus from Prague-Holešovice; 45 minutes.

Distance: 30 km north of Prague

More info: www.melnik.cz

Plzeň

As the birthplace of Pilsner Urquell, the city of Plzeň is all about suds. Here you can tour the famed brewery as well as a museum devoted to the history of brewing. (Both establishments serve up beer samples). Once you've sufficiently satiated your knowledge of beer-making, check out the pretty town square.

Directions: Bus from Florenc, 90 minutes.

Distance: 90 km west of Prague

More info: www.zcu.cz/plzen/

Weekend Journeys / Enchanted Weekends

Český Krumlov

Settled in 1253, the medieval city Český Krumlov is not to be missed. Declared a UNESCO protected site (no development is allowed in the Old Town) and very much playing up its Old World charm, a stroll down the narrow cobbled streets here is a stroll way, way, way back in time. Needless to say Český Krumlov is one of the most beloved tourist destinations in the Czech Republic.

Directions: Bus from Florenc or Na Knížecí; two hours. Train from Hlavní nádraží; three to five hours (change at České Budějovice).

Distance: 180 km south of Prague

More info: www.krumlov.cz

Stay

There are several options for inexpensive hostels in Old Town, Traveller's Hostel (www.travellers.cz) features live music, a beer garden, and is the place to be if you're a bright young thing with a penchant for partying. It's also one of the few places that do a cheap American-style breakfast. Its river location and nice price also make Hostel Merlin (www.hostelmerlin.cz) a find. Reservations are a must. The Belarie (www.belarie.cz) is a small, friendly, mid-priced hostel with lots of character. Families will enjoy U Malého Vítky, with its woody interiors and play area with puppet theatre in the courtyard. Reserve on the website (www.vitekhotel.cz). The five-star Hotel Růže (www.hotelruze.cz) is a converted 16th-century Jesuit college and by far the nicest hotel in town. Monumentally placed on a cliff overlooking the river, it has tapestries throughout and staff dressed in period costumes. Its sister hotel The Old Inn (www.hoteloldinn.cz) is recommended for its location (it's on the square) and friendly staff.

Eat

Český Krumlov is full of medieval inns known for their dark wooden furniture and selection of spit-fired meats. For fresh trout by the river and cups of cinnamon or almond mead (hot or cold) served in a rustic, intimate atmosphere try Křéma U Dvou Maríí. Visit the 13th-century candlelit catacombs of the Old Inn Hotel for traditional Czech cuisine with a side of Gothic charm. At Cikánská Jizba (Gypsy Tavern) your meal will likely be accompanied by live folk music. Cafe Laibon is a vegetarian oasis in a sea of carnivorous competitors. Delicious soups, a staggering list of teas, and innovative entrees make it a winning choice for lunch. Cafe Van Gogh is a nice place for a coffee break or breakfast; shelves crammed with board games and art books make it the perfect place to wait out the rain.

Do and See

Get thee to the massive castle complex on the hill. Tours of the castle are given from April through October, though you can stroll the castle grounds year round. It's the second largest after Prague Castle; you can pick and choose the tours you are most interested in. Climb the tower for a breathtaking view; tour the amazing Castle Theatre; tour the interior collections of the Rožmberks, Habsburgs, Eggenbergs, and Schwarzenbergs; beat the heat in Wenceslas' Basement which hosts a ceramic exhibit built straight into the bedrock; wave to the family of bears that live in moats by the castle. Entrance to the castle gardens is free; it's a stunning place to relax and spend a few hours.

Art enthusiasts will want to take in the exhibits at the Egon Schiele Art Center as well as pop in and out of the city's numerous smaller galleries. Nature buffs can rent a canoe, kayak, or raft and float off to Zlatá Koruna or Vyšší Brod (rental agencies will arrange for your pick up). Packages start at 650 CZK/day. Contact Vitava Agency (www.ckvitava.cz) for rental information. Vitava Agency also rents bikes for around 320 CZK/day.

Telč

This Moravian town and UNESCO designated city is an architectural pearl that's a bit less touristy than Český Krumlov. Some consider it to be the most beautiful Renaissance city in all of Europe. The chateau and carefully preserved town square, ringed with Renaissance-style houses, outdoor cafes, and restaurants make it an ideal place to while away a weekend. The large ponds surrounding the square also offer something for fans of nature and those who seek quiet reflection and a peaceful break from the bustle of Prague.

Directions: Bus from Florenc to Jihlava to Telč; three to four hours.

Distance: 100 miles southeast of Prague

More info: www.telc-etc.cz

Stay

Hostel Pantof (www.pantof.com) is a family operated gem located in the city center, with rooms that offer a fantastic view of the square. Though it's outside of the city limits by about five km, Hotel Dobrá Voda (www.dobravoda.net) is a steal with double rooms for 500 CZK. The Telč Hotel (www.hoteltelc.cz) is pricier but comes with amenities like mini-bar, satellite television, and private bath. Hotel Na Hrázi (+420 233 920 120) is located inside a quaint home with attached beer garden. Given its central location and cellar restaurant, Hotel Celerin (www.hotelcelerin.cz) is a pleasant pick.

Eat

U Marušky serves upscale pub food and frothy mugs of Platan Regent beer. The Black Eagle's trout, pork schnitzel (řízek), and hearty soups make the often lengthy wait for a table worthwhile. The garden restaurant at the Hotel Na Hrázi has an outdoor fireplace for added ambience – and added warmth on chilly summer nights.

Do and See

Spending time on the Zachariáše z Hradce Square is the most popular pastime in Telč. The facades of the buildings around the edge of the square are ornately decorated with amazing skill. The square is presided over by St. Jacob's Church at one end and the tower of the Church of the Holy Spirit at the other. Tour the Telč Chateau at the northern end of the square; tickets are available in the gate tower. The tour includes courtyards, cellars, chapels, libraries, and grand ballrooms with richly sculpted wooden ceilings. The most astounding room visited by the tour is the African Hall. Early 20th-century owners of the chateau were avid hunters – you'll spy dozens of wall-mounted trophy-busts and hides of crocodile, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, lion, leopard, and buffalo. Summertime brings the annual Folk Festival to the castle courtyard.

Ski Holidays

While the Czech Republic doesn't have the highest mountains or best slopes in Europe, there are plenty of ski resorts in the country – stretching from the German-Czech border to Moravia – that'll satisfy the casual skier.

Krkonoše Mountains

The mountains in the Krkonoše range, located at the Czech-Polish border near Germany (about 1-2 hours north of Prague) are some of the most popular. The resorts in Krkonoše include Špindlerův Mlýn (Svatý Petr), Harrachov, Pec pod Sněžkou, Prkený Důl Family Skipark, along with many others. The skiing here is generally the best in the Czech Republic; the resorts have the best equipment and the slopes are well-maintained; the area is where many winter sporting events are likely to take place. Krkonoše also boasts the highest mountain in the Czech Republic, Sněžka, which is about 1600 meters high. The area also features the highest volume of tourists: during peak seasons (generally Christmas through early March, though mid-January usually sees a decline in visitors) some resorts can become overcrowded, meaning long waits to get up the hills.

Jizerské hory

The Jizerské hory range, 60km west of Krkonoše and an hour north of Prague (by Liberec, near the German-Czech border), is another somewhat popular range, though much less so than Krkonoše. There are a number of slopes and resorts, and while the skiing may not be the best in the Czech Republic, there are also some interesting attractions. Package deals that include sites in Liberec and transportation from Prague are available.

Šumava

Further west by the German-Austrian border, are the mountains of Šumava. The mountains here have a lower elevation, but the resorts are cheaper and less crowded. The area is also better for families and beginners, with many ski schools and easier slopes. Resorts here include Špičák and Kašperské Hory.

Krušné hory & Orlické hory

The mountains of Krušné hory, at the border of Germany and North Bohemia, are inexpensive and not too crowded, but they are also not as well-equipped. Orlické hory is another similar range: 60km beyond Krkonoše near the Czech-Polish border, the mountains have a lower elevation, the area is cheaper and less crowded, but the slopes don't compare to Krkonoše. Both of these mountain ranges are recommended more for their cross-country trails, with interesting sights along the way.

Moravian Ranges

Further afield from Prague are a couple of Moravian ranges worthy of mention. Jeseniky, about four hours northeast of Prague by car, is one of the more popular ranges in Moravia, with one of the highest mountains in the Czech Republic – Praděd. The downhill skiing at the Jeseniky slopes is some of the best in the Czech Republic after Krkonoše, and although the area is very popular, it's a huge range with many resorts, meaning overcrowding usually isn't a problem. The area also receives a lot of snow, especially compared to the Bohemian ranges. Also in Moravia is the smaller range of Beskydy, 3-4 hours east of Prague, which doesn't have the elevation or top downhill skiing of Jeseníky, but does offer some nice cross-country trails through untouched nature, and a very relaxed atmosphere with traditional Czech culture and folklore.

Canadian Chamber of Commerce in the Czech Republic

TIP: To help plan your trip visit www.holidayinfo.cz for up-to-the-minute information on specific mountains and resorts: skiing conditions, amount and type of snow, temperature, maps, and more; even updated (hourly) stills and price lists for most of the resorts, grouped together by mountain range. All of the information on the site – including a brief description for most of the resorts – is in English.

Moravian Wine Weekend

The other side of the Czech Republic, Moravia, is characterized by folk music, warm people, and, above all, wine. The capital city of Moravia, Brno, (www.brno.cz) and the larger cities of Olomouc (www.olomouc-tourism.com) and Telč (see page 70) get a lot of press for their wealth of historical sites and picture-perfect town squares. But most visitors make the sojourn to Moravia's villages in order to tour the region's wine cellars. Winemaking is a serious business here and most wine bars serve local vintages like Frankovka straight from the cask. The differences between Bohemia and Moravia aren't just a matter of wine vs. beer: the traditional folk music and dances that are slowly disappearing from Bohemia are fully embraced by the Moravian people, and they tend to be more religious people than their neighbors to the northeast. On a lighter note, while Bohemians are lining up shots of Becherovka, here the spirit of choice is homemade Slivovice, a stiff plum brandy.

There are many Moravian destinations to choose from but a favorite is the town of Znojmo (www.znojmo-city.cz), the pickle capital of the Czech Republic, largely known for its proximity to the Painted Cellar of the Šatov Vineyard. Mikulov (www.mikulov.cz) is another popular spot for sipping – its Regional Museum with giant barrel is a big attraction. Valtice (www.valtice.cz) and Lednice (www.lednice.cz) are also wondrous places for wandering oenophiles. Exploring all of these regions in a single weekend is doable since they are clustered fairly close together. Though taking the bus is much cheaper, the ride to Mikulov, Valtice, or Lednice can clock in at a staggering seven hours. Hopping a train from Prague is your best bet; it'll take about four hours. A number of companies offer bicycle and walking tours of this region; if you have the means it's easiest to gas up and drive to your wine-guzzling location of choice.

Camping in the Czech Republic

Camping is fun and the Czech Republic is the place to do it. A variety of camping facilities can be found all over the country, many by rivers or lakes. Lots have showers and washrooms as well as electrical sockets at each pitch. Some campsites have chalets to rent if you need a more covered camping experience and if you have your own camper, there are spots for you too with electricity and water hook-ups. Some camps open in April, some not until May and most stay open through sometime in October. Czech Tourism (www.czechtourism.com) reports there are 22 camp sites in Prague, with an additional 63 in the nearby environs.

If you are looking to stay close to home and in posh camping surroundings, head to Klášovice (www.campinggraha.cz) Only 35 minutes by bus and metro from the center and you'll have a grassy spot to pitch your tent or park your camper. Additional just-like-home amenities include toilets, showers, electric hook-ups at all sites, a mini-market, beach bar, restaurant, internet, laundry and ironing facilities and two below ground swimming pools. Prices start at 120 CZK a day with discounts for week-long camping marathons.

Southwest of Prague in Stodůlky is Sunny Camp (www.sunny-camp.cz) They have 70 spaces for tents and campers, as well as a pension onsite in case the great outdoors get to be too much. They are open year round, offer electrical connections, a supermarket is nearby, and they have a restaurant, laundry facilities and wireless internet. Nearby attractions include the large park Prokopské údolí and Tuležim village, an open air medieval museum. Prices start at 130 CZK per night for camping; tents are available to rent starting at 110 CZK per night, as are campers, starting at 160 CZK a night.

Camp Džbán (www.campdzban.eu) is located northwest of Prague. They offer 120 grassy camping spaces for both tents and campers; kitchen for guest's use, a restaurant for those who prefer it, a mini-market, washing machine and drinking water. They also have a hostel on site as well as bungalows – you have your own "cottage" but kitchen and bathroom facilities are at the camp. Prices start at 95 CZK a night for camping, 600 CZK for a bungalow and 250 CZK a night for a bed in the hostel.

But can you really be camping if you are still in Prague? Go for broke and head to Camping Bucek (www.campingbucek.cz) about 40 kilometers north of Prague towards Karlovy Vary. The big draw here is the large lake, perfect for a variety of water sports. An on-site forest is also here, so it's great for a back-to-nature weekend. They have a golf course, volleyball court, playground for kids (including 2 trampolines!) and an indoor swimming pool. Camping Bucek has 100 campsites, electrical hook-ups, washrooms and showers and a washing machine. Pitches start at 300 CZK a night.

Continuing towards Karlovy Vary, we come to Radošov and the campsite Na Špici (www.naspici.ic.cz) Located at the foot of the Krušné Hory Mountains and near the Ohře River, it presents many outdoor attractions. They offer raft, canoe and mountain bike rental so no need to supply your own. Na Špici is a bit more rugged than some of the others (no swimming pool) but they have 100 sites, more than half with electrical hook-ups, but no water or sewage connections for campers. There are also bungalows available to rent, and a hotel on site. Prices for camping start at 80 CZK a night.

A multitude of campsites and outdoor attractions can be found in South Bohemia. Camping Kostelec (www.campingkostelec.nl) is up high (480 meters above sea level) so the views are amazing. They offer 70 places for tents or campers, showers, laundry facilities, "game room" with darts, ping pong and billiards and a mini-market. Prices start at 140 CZK per person per night.

Further south in the Šumava Mountains and near Lake Lipno is Camping Frymburk (www.campingfrymburk.cz) With campsites directly on the lake, you won't need to go far for some wet fun. They offer 170 sites, all with electrical hook-ups, washing machine, small shop and the possibility to rent bikes, surfboards, canoes and row boats. During July and August they offer children's programs and they'll arrange excursions to surrounding places of interest. Prices start at 320 CZK per pitch. They also have log cabins on site; prices start at 500 CZK per cabin.

In the beautiful Vysočina region you can get back to nature at Kratochvil (www.kratochvil.nl). They offer 50 campsites on the Jihlava River, newly renovated bathroom and showers, volleyball court and football field and plenty of canoeing, swimming and hiking opportunities. There's also a hotel onsite with an indoor pool and sauna. Campsite prices start at 250 CZK and they offer a discount in the off-peak season.

For a mountain camping experience head towards Krkonoše and Harrachov-Jiska (www.camp.harrachov.cz) The reasons to visit this area are the outdoor play prospects offered by the mountains; the shaded campsites and the nearby lake for swimming. Prices start at 80 CZK per person for camping and 450 CZK for a cottage which includes bathroom and kitchen. They are open year round so perfect for all you snow campers.

Head way south and east to Moravia and enjoy some wine with your toasted marshmallows. Near the Austrian border is Camp Bitov (www.camp-bitov.cz) a massive complex close to the Vranovská dam. They have a lake, forest and hills for all sorts of outdoor pursuits. You can rent sports equipment and boats, go fishing and they offer tons of activities for children. The wine town of Znojmo is 30 kilometers away so it makes for a nice region to explore. There's a restaurant, snack bar, shop, and free internet connection. Prices for camping start at 60 CZK per person, in one of their chalets its 120 CZK per person. They have 300 campsites, but only 50 have electrical hook-ups.
